

Book of the Month for April

The book of the month for April is “The Ever Curious Gardener” from a well-known author, Lee Reich PhD, located on Gabriola Island, and published in 2018 by New Society Publishers.

This book is wise and witty and offers not only the how-to but also the how come by showing you the science behind growing plants. The book cultivates curiosity and brings out your inner science nerd. Have you ever wondered why so many gardeners espalier their fruit and berry plants? Is it because it takes up less space or is it because they look tidier or they are easier to pick? All these things are true, but the main reason is that they produce more fruit per branch when the branches are forced horizontally.

To find out the science behind this and many more facts you must read this book.
